Butano Ridge Fire Under Control 600 Acres Burned

Fire in the redwoods between Pescadero Creek and Butano Ridge west of Shrine Park which raged all day Tuesday was brought under control at 11 o'clock that night after it had burned over approximately 600 acres, firemen on the scene reported to County Fire Warden Bert L. Werder's office here.

Werder was informed by the Central Security District in San Francisco that soldiers could be secured from Fort Ord to aid in battling the blaze, but Werder decided Tuesday afternoon not to send for them.

Fire today was confined to the slash area, firemen reported.

An official of the Santa Cruz Lumber Co., owner of the timber, said today the loss resulting from the burning would be offset by the good done in eliminating the fire hazard. Of 10,000,000 feet of felled lumber, the official estimated that only 1000 feet was destroyed.

Firemen tried to cut slashings to separate the burned from the unburned but the fire jumped trails and they let the slashings burn. Wild lilac, described by Werder as one of the worst fire brush there is, flourishes in the region.

Heavy fog aided firemen in bringing the blaze under control.

Slashings had accumulated over a period of two years because of restricted burning, the fire warden's office pointed out.

Only one casualty was reported. Pat O'Shea, deputy fire warden in charge of the Pescadero station, received first and second-degree burns on the face. Members of the Red Cross gave him first aid and fixed a mask, and O'Shea went back to battling the blaze.

The San Mateo County chapter of the Red Cross, under direction of Helen P. Chesebrough of Burlingame, this morning served breakfast to the firemen.

The fire warden's office here reported today it received "hundreds of calls" from parents of children vacationing at youth camps in the region. The camps were not endangered, it was stated.

Offer Bulletins For County Gardens

Three bulletins designed to aid victory garden growers and those who raise poultry in their backyards have been written by the Home Food Production Committee of the San Mateo County War Council.

Since the government has asked that millions more victory gardens be planted than were grown in 1943, it is important that local people know how to obtain the best results from their plots, George Davis, chairman of the committee, said today.

Last year many novice vegetable growers planted seeds not suitable to San Mateo County soil or climate, planted too much of one kind of vegetable and not enough of another, the chairman pointed out.

To forestall those mistakes a planting guide for San Mateo County vacant lot and backyard farmers has been written by the garden section of the committee.

The guide tells when, what variety and how much to plant for a crop adequate for a family of four.

These guides are available at the headquarters of the County War Council, in Burlingame at the office of the American Women's Voluntary Service on Park Rd., San Mateo at the Chamber of Commerce, all Redwood City schools and the Office of the Agricultural Commission Menlo Park at the Civilian Defense office Atherton, Woodside, Millbrae and cities in the north end of the county at schools.

Two bulletins which will be sent upon request from the County War Council have been written for those who plan to raise chickens in their backyards. These bulletins specially designed to meet problems of raisers of small flocks in this county were written by J. H. Stubbe, chairman of the Poultry Committee. The first deals with general instructions for raisers who have only small space for chicken yards. The second is designed to help raisers cull their flocks in order to have the best fowl for food and eggs.

Individual problems of victory gardeners in the county will be answered by the Home Food Production Committee.

Technical questions and problems dealing with insects, blights and soil will be referred by the committee to the San Mateo Agricultural Commission which acts as an advisory body for the committee.

Headquarters of the committee will be located in the offices of the San Mateo County War Council's new location at 1350 Howard Ave., Burlingame.

Santa Clara Valley 'Cot Season at Peak

With the peak of the harvest expected this week, the Redwood City War Council again issued its plea, today, for volunteer workers to pick and cut apricots in the Los Altos-Mountain View area orchards.

Mrs. S. S. Mayo, head of the food committee of the local council, reports that more than 100 volunteer workers are needed each day to work in the fields. She explained that trucks pick up the volunteers at the First Methodist Church, Broadway and Brewster Ave., each morning at 8 o'clock, transport them to the fields, returning them in the afternoon. Regular scale wage rates are in effect for all volunteer help.

Last week, the first that workers from this area were asked to assist, as many as 75 volunteers, including men, women, and children, aided, but that number must be increased this week, Mrs. Mayo explained.

Sequoia Board Passes Resolution For Purchase of Site for High School

Resolution calling for the purchase of the John W. Bourdette property in Belmont at a cost of $60,000 for the eventual construction of another high school, was passed Tuesday by the Sequoia High School District board, Supt. A. C. Argo announced.

The Bourdette property is located on Alameda de las Pulgas and Cranfield Ave., just inside the Belmont city limits, north of San Carlos, and consists of 30 acres of land, which includes 11 acres of orchard and an 8-room house which are supplied by water from two wells and a large reservoir.

Since no definite date has been set for construction of the new high school, the board accepted bids for rental of the property until such time as building will begin. Successful bidder was William F. Blank of South San Francisco, who will occupy the property for the indefinite period.

Arrangements for purchase of the Bourdette property were made at a meeting of the school board earlier this month, but the resolution was not adopted until last night.

The site has been approved by the State Department of Education, Division of School House Planning, and by the San Mateo County Planning Commission.

Superintendent Argo explained that payment of the $60,000 purchase price will be made by a down payment of $20,000, and four $10,000 instalments.

Police records said that Morrow had entered the cafe, owned by Mrs. Charles O'Neil of Menlo Park, through a rear door and had not yet reached the cash drawer when he was found by Officer Potter.

Morrow was held in the county jail for the Navy Shore Patrol.

County Board of Architects To Sketch Postwar Plans

Organization of a board of architects to advise the County Planning Commission and to complete detailed plans and specifications for postwar projects was announced this week by Planning Advisor Ronald Campbell.

Appointment of the advisory board and use of the planning commission to complete the postwar construction problem has the co-operation and consent of both the county executive and the board of supervisors, it was announced, and it was declared that the program will be kept scrupulously free of political interference.

The board, comprising five San Mateo County architects, has held one preliminary meeting and will meet again this afternoon in San Francisco.

Members of the board are James Mitchell, Burlingame, chairman; Hervey Clark, Woodside, secretary; Harry A. Thomsen, San Mateo; Arthur Jansen, Atherton, and Leo Sharp, Burlingame. The panel was selected jointly by the county executive and the board of supervisors, Campbell said.

Need for immediate action on postwar planning was expressed by Fred E. Beer, chairman of the board of supervisors, after the recent state supervisor's association convention.

He explained that the state would match county funds dollar for dollar in paying for postwar plans.

In June, 1942, the county planning commission published a list of postwar projects calling for immediate construction of projects valued at $2,840,227. To these were added "reserve" projects to cost about $6,000,000.

This postwar project list is being revised with the co-operation of city planning commissions, and the board of architects will start immediately on detailed plans and specifications for those projects given highest priority by the County Planning Commission.

Sergeant Cortright—A Forgotten Soldier?

To the Editor: The other evening a group of us fellows were gathered around telling of our experiences overseas when one of the men happened to mention a fellow, who graduated from school in your town and more or less grew up there—a fellow who has been to quite a few far-flung outposts during this present conflict, and one whom we all admire a great deal. Well to make a long story short this fellow has been down and out ever since a certain date in August of 1943 and we would like to do something to cheer him up. Ever since he has been gone there never has been any mention of him, or what he has done, and we believe that a great injustice is being done him, as he intends to return to your fair city to make his home there.

This fellow left Redwood City in 1939 and enlisted in the coast artillery corps for service in Hawaii. Upon completion of his service there he was transferred to Ft. McDowell in San Francisco to serve for almost four months. When a new organization was being formed at Ft. Winfield Scott, this fellow volunteered to leave as a key man and start a new organization. With the expansion of the army in 1940 he again volunteered for foreign service, and was transferred to Ft. Lewis, Wash., to await transportation to Alaska. In the Fall of 1940 he left Seattle for Seward—to be one of the first troops to arrive in the territory. When the war was declared in 1941 he was called away from his post, and when the need for replacements was greatest he volunteered again. This time he chose the air corps, and was schooled in navigation. He joined a (censored) bomber group as an enlisted navigator, and saw much service during the seige of Kiska Island. The in May of 1943 he served with the task force which invaded Attu. During this campaign he saw most of his combat service and even to this day he still shows signs of the hardships they must have suffered there. Just before he was due for his reassignment he volunteered for a mission over Paramushiro Island on the upper Japanese peninsula. Upon return from this mission he suffered an accident (censored), which is (censored) of your limbs becoming frozen. Suffering great pain he carried out his duties with the best of his ability, and was recommended for the Medal of Merit for conspicuous duty above and beyond the call of natural duty. He was given the choice of a discharge or limited service, and he took the latter—now he is finishing training to go overseas with a quartermaster unit in the very near future.

The display of such initiative shown by this fellow is of such nature that we all feel that we should try to do something to show him the way we feel. You see none of us have been overseas as yet, and we are proud to have such a fellow with us. The fellow we have been mentioning is Staff Sgt. William F. Cortright, who used to reside with the Lindsay P. Gray's of 352 Myrtle St.

You may wonder why we know so much of this fellow, but when we all handle the records as much as we do we all know about the other fellow's business and troubles as much as he does.

Could you possibly run some small notice letting his friends know what he has done, and also letting them know where he is—we are sure he would like to hear from some of his old friends, and we also are sure he doesn't. It isn't every day a fellow like Sergeant Cortright gets any thanks for the things he has done, and we all feel that something should be done for him.

Thanking you for your kind consideration, and hope that you can find something in this connection that will solve our needs. We also like to help a fellow solve his problems, and if this could do anything for him, then it is a small thing to us but may mean the world to him.

A. A. MORAN SKETCHES GROWTH OF PORT OF REDWOOD CITY

A. A. Moran, Redwood City port manager, Wednesday unfolded the remarkable history of the city's harbor, with a boom wartime development, which has brought city taxpayers a facility appraised at $1,041,000 in return for their investment of $115,040 in bonds and interest.

He disclosed publicly for the first time the data on the great freight car jam of Nov. 12, 1943, when 165 loaded cars in Redwood City and 286 more on sidings all the way to Salinas awaited unloading at the port.

"There was no traffic control into the port at that time," he explained. "When the government wanted something shipped over our wharves, it ordered it.

"In the five days, Nov. 12 to 16, we unloaded 422 cars. On Nov. 14, 90 cars at the port were unloaded, and they would make the longest freight train you have ever seen pass the Broadway crossing. That day set a record for any Bay Area port facility."

November, he predicted, will long stand as a record for port business, for in those 30 days the port unloaded 1368 cars containing 43,763 tons of cargo, handled nine ocean-going steamers and four bay and river craft, and put 49,717 tons of cargo over the wharf.

The port payroll between Nov. 5 and Dec. 7, not including stevedores loading ships, was $42,084.

Moran paid high tribute to the "victory gangs" — part-time cargo handlers from all parts of the Peninsula, who worked from 7 p.m. to midnight unloading cars. At one time there were 318 men on the port payroll.

A. A. MORAN

"This port has made a name for itself," Moran commented. "Every large shipping firm has had ships in Redwood City, and there has never been five minutes delay by the port on berthing or papers."

Moran expressed surprise that so few people in Redwood City know of the vital growth of the port since the start of the war.

The greatest singie development came on Aug. 1, 1942, when the port commissioners signed an agreement with the Pacific Bridge Co., leasing 10 acres of land adjacent to the port property. The firm paid a rental of $100 per acre per month, or $1000 per month total. It spent $15,163 on a railway to the port; finished the existing wharf at a cost of $9695; graded the 10 acres under lease at a cost of $12,000, and spent another $6700 for an office, warehouse, water pipes, electric conduits and other facilities. The lessees constructed an additional wharf at a cost of $101,148 and paid $76,921 for additional dredging.

In all the firm spent $221,708, and Moran estimated that 98 per cent of this investment was of lasting benefit to the port. The port came into possession of all the improvements upon payment of $9000, paid out of $15,000 rental received.

Most important was the rail connection, Moran pointed out, for all freight handled by the port previously was trucked. This limited the traffic to nearby points.

Rail facilities made the port available to all parts of the nation and thousands of tons from Canada, Detroit, Cincinnati and other centers have crossed its wharves.

In the 18 months after completion of the rail line the port handled 101 ocean going steamers and 126 bay and river craft. It transferred 702,955 tons of cargo in addition to 42,094 at the port when it was taken over by the U. S. Navy. Value of the 745,049 tons he estimated at $20,000,000. It was handled in 6791 freight cars, which would make a train from San Francisco's Third and Townsend St. depot to a point 12 miles below San Jose.

The port manager pointed out that the port's gross revenue in fiscal 1941 was $34,410; in 1942, $64,602; for the year ending July 1, 1943, with eight months of spur track use, $220,584, and for the 10 months ended Apr. 30, 1944—$514,096.

The port had a surplus of $89,969 in 1943 after paying interest and setting up $5000 for contingencies. In 1944 the "surplus" grew to $236,312.

"The city now owns the land between Harbor Blvd. and Redwood Creek," he explained. "The port has purchased 27.23 acres for $48,562. In addition it has added betterments, including additional rail facilities, at a cost of $35,000, and the port today rates as a million-dollar proposition.

"Its assets on Apr. 30 were $1,041,000."

There are outstanding $209,000 in bonds, and the taxpayers have invested $115,040.

For the postwar period, Moran strongly recommended organization of a county chamber of commerce to bring industries to this area.

"The question of jealousy should be forgotten," he urged.

He predicted that in years to come the Port of Redwood City will handle 75 per cent of the canned and dried fruits from the Santa Clara Valley.

He estimated that the navy, which now operates the port, would spend nearly a half million dollars in additional developments but said he could not judge the permanent value of the improvements.

Moran spoke at the Redwood City Exchange Club and was introduced by Pres. Floyd McCue. Edmund Scott, port commissioner and member of the club, complimented Moran highly for his efficient service for the commission.

Poses as Deputy Sheriff ---Strikes Sunnyvale Rancher

San Mateo County sheriff's deputies today sought a man posing Saturday night as a deputy sheriff who stopped a Sunnyvale rancher on Canada Rd. near Woodside, threatened him with a revolver, struck him over the head with the gun and tried to handcuff him.

Two sailors also reported to the sheriff's office that they had been threatened by a man answering similar descriptions.

John Pavlina, Sunnyvale rancher, reported to the sehriff's office that he was forced to drive his pickup truck off Canada Rd. by a man driving an automobile and posing as a deputy sheriff. He said the man threatened him with a revolver, hit him over the forehead and chest with the gun and tried to handcuff him.

Pavlina ,who said the man who stopped him was drunk, shoved his assailant aside and notified the sheriff's office here of the disturbance.

A warrant was drawn up today by the district attorney's office for the arrest of a John Doe" on a battery charge. Dep. Sheriff Jack O'Brien, one of the investigating deputies, said he believed Pavlina's assailant was a special watchman in the Woodside district.

The disturbance occurred about 9 o'clock Saturday night. Pavlina said the man halted him and asked him what he was doing out that time of night. Riding in the pickup truck with Pavlina was Olive Ross of Sunnyvale.

In a report from the sheriff's office to the district attorney's office, it was stated that two sailors had been threatened by a man answering the description of Pavlina's assailant. They were not named as complainants in the warrant, however. The sailors were Arthur Balsam, 285 King St., Redwood City, and Verrill Collison, stationed at radio station WPO transmitter, San Carlos.

Cyclist's Nose Broken In Bayshore Accident

Larry Neil, 12, of 218 Lexington St., received a broken nose this week when the bicycle on which he was riding collided with an automobile driven by Theodore A. Hovig, Rte. 2, Box 3456, Redwood City, Redwood City Police said today.

The accident occurred at 8:19 p. m. at the intersection of Broadway and California St., and Neil was taken to the Palo Alto Hospital.

R.C. Firemen Keep Busy Saturday P.M.

Redwood City firemen had one of the busiest days in many months Saturday afternoon when six fires were reported between 2:30 and 5:30 o'clock, Chief Mary Ryan said this week.

Five grass fires, the largest of which was at 270 Hillview Ave., caused no damage, Chief Ryan said, although the Hillview blaze for a short time threatened several small buildings in the rear of the property.

Firemen experienced no difficulty in getting to a small fire in a dry hedge at 5:29 p.m., as the hedge bordered the fire station at Middlefield Rd. A lighted cigaret or match was apparently the cause of the fire, he said.

Other grass fires were reported at 233 Topaz Ave., Katherine and Grand Sts., and Ebener St. and Roosevelt Ave.

A smoking belt on a refrigerator motor called the engines to 1601 Oxford St., where firemen stopped the smouldering with CO2 before damage could be done to the motor.

Russians Get Clothing Kits Prepared In Redwood City

By cablegram from Moscow, Dr. Anna Louise Strong has sent the Redwood City Tribune a dramatic account of how the Russian War Relief kit made by local school children and boxes of clothing packed by Palo Altans have been received by Russian women and children who knew the horror of German conquest.

The three boxes accompanied Dr. Strong, noted Russian authority whose home is in Menlo Park, when she left for Russia, last month, on a writing assignment for Atlantic Monthly. Before leaving, she promised the Palo Alto Russian War Relief Unit a full account of the disposal of the kit and clothing. Here is her cable, received this morning:

"The most rapid shipment of Russian War Relief came out of Palo Alto, making a record for the United States. The kit prepared by pupils of David Starr Jordan Junior High and clothing boxes assembled by Mrs. Charles Neiderhause in mid-June, left Alaska, June 25, by plane, through Siberia and last week reached three women and 12 children in liberated area 70 miles west of Moscow.

"Women are farm workers on giant state-owned dairy farm, 70 squire miles in area. Farm is badly wrecked by Germans, the buildings destroyed, cattle carried off and the women's homes burned by retreating Germans who soaked them in kerosene. However, some cattle were evacuated and returned following Red Army so reconstruction has already begun.

"Women recipients were selected by meeting of farm administration with farm hand's trade union. All the women came in directly from the fields, where 90 per cent of the farm hands are now women. All were surprised and a trifle awed by packages directly from America. They smiled with pleasure when told these gifts were from the Allies.

"Black-haired Maria Gavilova and her 11-year-old son, Alexander, got the standard relief kit prepared by Nancy Welch, Marilyn Nehrenberg and Ted Crawford, and Bill Classen of Redwood City. Maria told how the Germans took all her food and made her cook it.

"'They took my last knife so I had to cut bread with a broken bit of glass.'

"Maria helped two wounded Red Army soldiers but the Germans discovered them and hung the men, forcing the women to pull ropes, while the Germans kicked out the barrel.

"Maria couldn't stand it and tried to sneak away but the Germans caught her and forced her back, threatening to beat any woman who cried. The bodies were left hanging in the village three days.

"One of the women said, 'I'm glad American women have not had to live through what we did, if your husband, son or sweetheart is fighting the Germans, tell him to fight harder and quickly end this tyranny.'"

Mayor Hilton Warns Motorists to S.F.

Mayor W. W. Hilton this week warned Redwood City motorists who plan trips to San Francisco that they are subject to fines as well as the residents of that city for violating hill parking regulations.

In a letter to Mayor Hilton, Mayor Roger Lapham of San Francisco pointed out that 195 runaway cars had injured 17 and killed one in the past 1½ years, and police officers have been required to enforce a parking ordinance concerning hill parking.

The ordinance provides: "It shall be unlawful for an operator to stand or park any vehicle upon any perceptible grade without effectively setting the brakes thereon and blocking the wheel of said vehicle by turning them against the curb or by any other means."

Track Official Faces Wife's Cruelty Charge

Frank E. Peterson, track maintenance superintendent at Bay Meadows Race Track, this week was sued in superior court here for separate maintenance by Mrs. Margaret Peterson of 2222 Flores St., San Mateo.

Mrs. Peterson charged her husband with cruelty, and declared he had beaten her with his fists on four occasions—the last time on June 19, the day of the couple's separation. They were married in Reno Dec. 26 of last year.

Mrs. Peterson said her husband earned $100 a week and received $300 a week for use of his track equipment, making his present weekly income $400. She asked for $300 a month support and a portion of the community property, which consists of two expensive automobiles, approximately $30,000 in cash and $10,000 in real estate.

The names of the successful candidates will be sent to the board of supervisors, who will name two more persons to the five-man board. County Treasurer A. H. Sagehorn is an automatic member of the board.

The retirement system went into effect the first of this month.

The Telephone Spirit of Service

"It is traditional in our business that our people always rise to the height of any emergency. Telephone men and women have been tested, time and again, on occasions of fire, flood, earthquake and other disaster. With the first flash of the news of hostilities, and without bidding, hundreds of telephone men and women who were off duty, reported to their posts. The response of our entire organization was immediate. That spirit and will-to-do which are of such vital importance in these emergency times were given full expression by an organization trained in the rendition, maintenance and safeguarding of a service upon which our Country, arming itself under an accelerated war program, depends so vitally for rapid and efficient communication. At the forefront is that 'Spirit of Service' which has been demonstrated so admirably by thousands of telephone men and women who, in fair or stormy weather, have taken 'the message through.' Calmly and effectively our men and women are serving the great Cause of Human Freedom."

The above statement was made in our Annual Report for 1941. Immediately following the tragic disaster at Port Chicago, California—a disaster in character and in kind entirely new to us—our men and women, beset by lurking danger at every turn, again rose to the traditional heights of service and expressed all along the line in their every action that "Spirit of Service," the portrayal of which a word picture cannot possibly do full justice.

This tragic disaster with its most distressing loss of life saw telephone men and women on the job before the detonation of the terrific explosion had scarcely died away. The "Spirit of Service" was at the forefront! The response to duty was immediate. Without an order, without an instruction, or without waiting for a direction, telephone men and women accepted immediately the challenge and went to work to be of the greatest possible service in this most unfortunate and terrifying emergency.

Not only the regular forces, but men and women who had formerly worked for the company left their families and their homes and responded immediately, on their own volition, to play their full part to "take the message through." The rapid restoral of the long distance service and the speed with which the plant was restored is well known to the general public. Each employee stuck to his post even though suffering physical injuries.

The men and women who did this magnificent work, under the greatest of dangers, are part and parcel of our organization of more than 43,000 people. Through their earnestness of effort, efficiency and courtesy they are playing their full and effective part each day as do our 4,886 uniformed men and women on the war front, in whom we take justifiable pride, to take our great Nation through to Victory and Peace.

We express our pride, admiration and appreciation to each of our people for the effective part they played in this most creditable and splendid performance of our organization. It shall be a lasting inspiration to all of us to be of ever greater service.

We bow in deepest appreciation to an understanding and friendly public for its most helpful co-operation. This splendid assistance makes an almost impossible task in these emergency days an inspired undertaking to our men and women throughout our entire organization.

President.

City Library To Exhibit Paintings

An exhibit of water colors, painted by PFC Ralph Ledesma, Redwood City soldier now in Italy with the 40th Combat Engineers, is being shown in the Redwood City Public Library this week, Wilhelmina Harper, librarian, announced today.

The paintings were recently received by his sister, Isabel Ledesma, 2323 El Camino Real, and include scenes from North Africa, Sicily and Italy where the artist soldier has been stationed.

Ledesma, who began painting many years ago, received his only formal training in art while he was a student at Sequoia High School. He is enthusiastic about his hobby, having joined the Palo Alto Art Club several years ago in order to sketch and paint at the club's weekly sessions.

RALPH LEDESMA

He hopes to make art his career when he returns to civilian life.

Two years ago, before his entry into the army in November, 1942, he exhibited several portraits and stilllifes in the Redwood City Library.

Before leaving for overseas duty in July, 1943, Ledesma painted many portraits of his army buddies. He also did landscapes and other subjects in pastels and pencil drawings.

Since he has been overseas, his duties as a member of a combat engineers regiment have given him little time for painting, his sister said, and many of his scenes are done hastily.

However, his water colors show considerable detail and are particularly vivid in his portrayal of the war-scarred Italian countryside.

He has several other pictures completed which he expects to send home soon.

His mother, Mrs. Frances Ledesma, also resides in Redwood City. His brother, Elmo, is a corporal in the signal corps, now stationed somewhere in England.

Ledesma's exhibit will be shown during library hours which are from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on weekdays, and 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Sundays.

San Francisco Man Faces Battery Charge

Trial of James V. Holt, 48, of San Francisco, a watchman for the San Francisco Water Co., charged with battery after he allegedly struck a Sunnyvale rancher with his gun while posing as a deputy sheriff Saturday night, has been set for Aug. 4 at 2 p.m. before Justice of the Peace Edward I. McAuliffe. Holt's attorney, Edmund Scott, yesterday entered a plea of not guilty for him.

Holt was arrested on a warrant signed by John Pavlina, Sunnyvale rancher, who claimed that on Saturday night Holt drove him off the road, threatened him with a .32-caliber automatic and struck him on the head and chest with the gun.

The sheriff's office said Holt admitted stopping some people and questioning them, including some sailors. Pavlina said he was stopped on Canada Rd. Two sailors, Arthur Balsam of Redwood City and Verrill Collison of San Carlos, said they had been threatened by a man answering Holt's description.

Holt is free from jail on $250 cash bail.

REDWOOD CITY 2628 Broadway

GARDEN: Tests Show Best Place for Fertilizer

BY ROLLY LANGLEY

Your fall crops will need fertilizer, especially if you've grown a good summer vegetable on the soil, but you'll have better yields if you exercise more care in placing the fertilizer.

Results of a six year series of experiments by the soils department of Michigan State College, and reported by R. L. Cook have especial significance at the start of our fall planting campaign. The tests were to determine the best place for fertilizer in relation to pea seeds.

Four different methods were tried: (1) Fertilizer in contact with the seed. (2) Fertilizer placed in bands ½ inch to the side and 1½ inches below the seed. (3) Fertilizer placed in bands two inches to the side and 1½ inches below the seed. (4) Fertilizer drilled in deep with a grain drill before planting.

If you like to guess, make up your mind right now which placement got the best results. Chances are you picked No. 3, but actually No. 2 is much the better practice. . . . That's just a half inch in one side, and an inch and a half below the seed.

"If one groups all the fertilizer treatments for purposes of comparison, the plots which received the fertilizer in contact with the seed yielded 1720 pounds per acre," Cook states. "Where the fertilizer was placed in a side band two inches out from the seed, the yield was 1879, and where the distance out to the fertilizer was only a half inch, the yield was 2110 pounds. Thus it was seen that the fertilizer should not touch the seed, but that it should be as close to it as possible."

Complete returns for the six years are too lengthy, but that's the most of it. A mixed fertilizer was found to be the best, even though it's well known that peas, being a legume crop, have the power to fix nitrogen from the atmosphere.

However, when a fertilizer containing both superphosphate and potash was tried, the yields were good. Superphosphate alone actually reduced the crop in one experiment, and the reason was probably a higher acidity created in the soil than peas like.

A check of the root systems of the peas showed that the nodules which put back nitrogen into the soil were practically non-existent where the fertilizer was placed in contact with the seeds. But placed out just a bit, the fertilizer didn't interfere with this important process.

After making the experiments, the authorities there recommended a O-17-7 or O-20-10 fertilizer. But we can't follow that too closely in California because our soils are notoriously poorer in nitrogen than eastern soils. The suggested application was 300 pounds per acre, which would be about .7 pound per 100 square feet, and this would be concentrated in a band, not broadcast.

However, the experimentors didn't comment on just how the fertilizer was washed when water was applied and the plant food became available to the peas. No doubt the water would wash it downward, and somewhat to each side. And remember that when drilling in a dry fertilizer, they advise that it be put BELOW THE SEEDS AT THE START.

Since greenthumbers usually have a minimum crop of peas, it's important that the vines all mature at the same time. Otherwise, the harvest is a series of teasing samples.

To get uniform growth, the seeds must not only be planted at the same depth, but they must receive the same amount of water—and the drainage must be equal all along the rows. This isn't difficult where the beds are put level before planting, but it's next to impossible where one rushes the cultivation and preconditioning of the soil.

The same treatment given peas would apply to lettuce and chard, in my opinion. The root crops should have a deeper supply of plant food. But as often pointed out here, the best way to know your particular soil is to try different experiments yourself.

REMINDER: If you'd like a trial packet of the new Slow Bolting Flat Dutch Cabbage seed, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope immediately. If you hurry, you can enjoy this practically odorless variety this Fall. Send your request to Rolly Langley, care of this paper.

Dr. Taylor Appointed To State Board

Dr. Wesley H. Taylor, 888 Blanford St., who has been practicing in Redwood City for several years, was this week appointed to the state board of osteopathic examiners by Gov. Earl Warren.

Dr. Wesley replaces Dr. Edward E. Davidson, Los Angeles, whose term has expired.

The governor also reappointed Dr. Eugene C. Darnall, Berkeley, to this board and named Adrian Ruyle, Berkeley, to succeed Emil C. Long of San Rafael on the state board of barber examiners. Long's term had expired.

Arrest Dibble Worker On Federal Charge

Elizabeth Tillson, 25, 220 University Ave., Menlo Park, was in the county jail here this week en route to the U. S. marshal on a charge of stealing property from a government reservation.

Federal Bureau of Investigation officers, who made the arrest, said that she took $20 from the wallet of a fellow worker while employed in the mess hall at Dibble Hospital in April and was caught taking a wallet from another girl. The latter episode resulted in a hair-pulling contest, the FBI reported.

Edward Sandberg Hurt While Operating Saw

Edwin Sandberg, owner of the North Redwood Woodworking Co., of Redwood City, was injured late Tuesday while working at his Laytonville saw mill and received emergency treatment at the Willits Hospital.

Sandberg was squeezed between two logs while operating the electric saw, causing injury to his leg and thigh and has been returned to his home where he will remain under the care of Dr. H. A. Clattenburg until he is ready to resume work.

How to make a "Jiffy" cake

THIS CAKE is the magic answer, when you're really in a hurry. Takes only a few minutes to make the batter, and a half-hour to bake. Here's the recipe:

JIFFY CAKE

1¾ cups enriched flour
2½ tsps. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
1 cup sugar
⅔ cup milk
⅓ cup softened shortening
1 egg
1 tsp. vanilla extract

Sift flour; measure; sift into large bowl with baking powder, salt, and sugar. Measure milk into cup; add shortening to fill. Dump milk, shortening, unbeaten egg, and flavoring into flour mixture. Beat with rotary beater 2 to 3 minutes, or until batter is smooth. Pour batter into well greased shallow square cake pan (8x8x2). Bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 30 minutes, or until done. Serve warm or cold, plain or with sauce. Serves 8.

Cup Cakes, too, require surprisingly little time to prepare (summertime suggestions: serve them split and covered with crushed fresh fruit, or with frosting, or with powdered sugar). The recipe:

CUP CAKES

1¾ cups enriched flour
2½ tsps. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
⅓ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 tsp. vanilla extract
1 egg
⅔ cup milk

Sift flour; measure; mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Cream shortening until smooth; gradually add sugar, creaming until fluffy; beat in vanilla and egg. Add flour alternately with milk, beating until smooth after each addition. Turn into greased muffin pans and bake in moderate oven (375° F.) about 25 minutes. Makes 18 cakes.
